

PEOPLE AGAINST PARENTAL ALIENATION

THE BRAINWASHING OF CHILDREN

Children, in their innocence and susceptibility, find themselves unwittingly caught in the crossfire of a psychological battle masterminded by the alienating parent.

This insidious warfare takes a toll on the child's emotional well-being and sense of security.

The alienator's relentless campaign of denigration and character assassination against the targeted parent creates a hostile environment where the child is constantly exposed to negativity and toxicity.

These harmful influences sow seeds of uncertainty and anxiety in the child's mind, eroding the natural bond between parent and child.

As the alienation deepens, the child starts to internalise the false narratives fed to them, gradually developing a distorted perception of the targeted parent.

This skewed view can have lasting repercussions on the child's relationships and self-esteem, impacting their emotional development in profound ways.

Furthermore, the alienating parent may employ a range of manipulative tactics to sever the child's ties with the targeted parent.

This could involve restricting communication, sabotaging visitation arrangements, or exploiting legal loopholes to gain custody advantages.

These calculated moves serve to isolate the child from a loving and nurturing relationship, robbing them of the opportunity to form a healthy bond with both parents.
